

Dear Dr Almeida,

Thank you so much for speaking with our Foundations of Psychotherapy Theories class about liberation psychology on Monday. Your presentation gave our graduate students a vital perspective that expands how they think about the foundations of our field, particularly the ways that social context, power, and systems of oppression shape distress and the work of healing.

The students' comments post lecture showed how much it resonated. Many of them are already reflecting on how these ideas challenge and enrich the other theories we are studying. Comments included 'I loved this lecture and this whole topic' 'how interesting it was to learn the difference between liberation psychology and multiculturalism' The video examples provided some context that really demonstrated the effectiveness of liberation psychology' and "I really enjoyed this lecture! Thanks so much for coordinating it. I'm going to look into the conference for sure.'

I am grateful for your time, generosity, and expertise. Please let me know if you would like to give a guest lecture again in the future. I am looking forward to the conference next week!

Sincerely
